In 2012 more than 500 people that died in crashes in Pennsylvania were not wearing their seat belt. The primary seat belt law requires all vehicle occupants under the age of 18 to be buckled up or the driver can be pulled over and cited just for the seat belt violation. This week the Manheim Township Police Department will be on roadways leading into and out of the Manheim Township High School Campus. Officers will briefly stop teen drivers to hand out information on the requirements for seat belt use in Pennsylvania. These informational "Seat Belt Mini-Cades" will be in place during the morning and afternoon hours. These informational details will then be followed up with enforcement action in the following weeks. Drivers found to be in violation WILL BE prosecuted – NO WARNINGS will be issued.
